	The United States, and Northeast Asia: Debates, Issues, and New Order	John Ikenberry and Chung-in Moon eds.	Rowan & Littlefield	2008
수업개요	This course is designed to introduce and analyze the international relations in East Asia. East Asia is one of the most dynamic regions in world politics. During the Cold War, East Asia has gone through intense competition and conflict between the superpowers and among states in the region. In the post-Cold War era, East Asian has been not only the engine of the global economy, but also the center of the major power shift, such as rising China, declining the US. This course will begin with the question of what is East Asia, particularly for the eyes of South Korea. Then, we will examine the sources of conflict and cooperation in terms of security, politics, and economy.
