☞ Mark that we may not cover all contents in the textbook in the interest of time, which means you need to preview and review the materials so that you can ask questions when there are some parts in the book that happen to be skipped or briefly skimmed.

✎ The course contents and the schedule are subject to change in consideration of the class population and the students' needs and interests. Any such changes will be announced in class; it is the student's responsibility to keep up with changes.

✎ Attendance: Class attendance is important to success in this course. The instructor reserves the right to lower final grades for poor attendance – if you are absent from class more than 1/3 of the whole class times, it will result in failure of the course. You will get -0.5 point per absence and three cases of negligence (coming late or leaving earlier) equal one absence. If you are constantly late for class or leave class early (10min-rule!), it will downgrade your final grade for course. On the other hand, you will benefit from good attendance/participation when you are on the border between grading categories.

✎ Quizzes are given during the class meeting time. There will be no makeups for quizzes. Among the quiz/HW scores, the lowest one will be dropped.

✎ Homework assignments: Homework consists of syntactic problem sets, which challenge your analytical and critical mind.

❖ Assignments must be turned in on time (The deadline for each assignment will be given in class). Your homework assignment will be graded on the scale of 10. If you submit an assignment one class late, you won't get more than 7 points. If you submit it later than that, you'll get no more than 5 points.

❖ If you are unable to be in class for any reason, you may email your homework assignment to the instructor so you will not lose points for not submitting it on time. You are still responsible for printing out a paper copy and giving it to the instructor the next time you're in class. Otherwise, you'll not receive any point for that homework.

✎ For the Final Project, you are to choose a sentence or two from a language you are not familiar with (so, no English nor Korean), and suggest a tree diagram for those sentences. This project is part of Final Exam.

• Exams (Midterm; Final): The exams will take place on the designated dates in the course calendar. Please mark the dates and times in your planner, as well.

☐ Makeups for the exam (midterm or final) will be given only in case of emergency. If you must miss an exam, notify the instructor as quickly as possible either by email (youngrana@gmail.com) or by speaking to her beforehand. If you have a prolonged illness or other problems that prevent you from attending class for more than 2 weeks in a row, please discuss this with the instructor.

CLASS DECORUM

Show respect to the other members of class: Turn off cell phones during class; come to class on time and prepared to discuss the readings; do not talk while the instructor or other students are addressing the class. Please make sure to put away your cell phone in a quiz/exam session.

DISABILITY SUPPORT SERVICES

If you have a physical, psychological, medical or learning disability that may impact your course work, please contact and consult with the instructor for help with the in-and-out-of-class activities. The accommodations, which are necessary and appropriate, include the following: You are allowed to record the lectures if it's necessary for you to study; you can be provided the class materials on demand; you can be given an extended deadline for homework; you can be helped by a person who writes for you in class or on exams/tests; you can submit a homework assignment in a form that you feel more comfortable with (e.g., oral or written); the percent and contents of your assignments and tests/exams can be adjusted after discussion with the instructor; another date/time can be set up for your tests/exams if it's considered necessary, etc. All information and documentation is confidential. Students who require assistance during emergency evacuation are encouraged to discuss their needs with their professors and the school authority (Department of Academic Affairs).

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

The students are expected to maintain standards of personal integrity that are in harmony with the educational goals: They are prohibited from showing any behavior that disrupts the teaching and learning environment, including cheating and plagiarism, which will result in the course failure.
